Authors' event draws Valentine's Day crowd

The Arcadia Woman's Clubhouse was a Valentine picture in pinks and reds for the club's annual "Meet the Authors" luncheon, recently, with guest authors Ed Gregory, Dan Post, Charles Champlin and Jack Smith appearing as speakers.

Mary Kay Waite, president, greeted the overflow crowd at the door, and Jane Shepherd introduced the authors, as well as several guests.

Ed Gregory, science fiction specialist and author of "Strange Signals From Space," explained to the audience some of the intricacies of writing for publication.

"Actually, I write for fun," he said, but went on to reveal that money was a necessity to keep the wolf from the door. He went on to say that publicity and exposure made a great deal of difference as to whether a book would sell or not. "I didn't believe all the autograph-signing parties were necessary, at first, but it does make a difference in sales," he said.

Gregory gave a humorous account of his experiences sending manuscripts to publishers. "They didn't seem to know how to spell my name, and return letters were addressed 'Dear Author'," he said.

He stressed the need to know the publishing market, not only what specialties are selling, but what the publishers think the public wants. Nowadays, he said, publishers don't accept unsolicited manuscripts, and budding authors are advised to send a "query letter" to the publishing house of their choice. If the reaction is favorable, Gregory indicated that the author would receive, in turn, a request for a story explanation and a chapter sample.

"However, be sure to have a job on the side," he explained, adding that the process is "very slow." Gregory has written several novels, and is now at work on a musical.

"Every author's best friend," is how Arcadian Dan Post described the typewriter, and as a collector of antique writing machines he knows whereof he speaks.

Post described the historical evolution of the typewriter in the U.S. from the first appearance of the commercial model at the Philadelphia Centennial exposition in 1876 to the present. He dwelt at length on the early machines, particularly the one exhibited at the exposition which was invented by Christopher Latham Sholes and manufactured by Philo Remington.

"The early machines had one particular drawback," Post pointed out. "They typed up onto a roller, and the typist couldn't see what he was doing."

He also explained that the present keyboard of most typewriters is essentially the same as Sholes's model. "No one quite knows why the letters were arranged in that particular sequence," he said, "and everyone has been trying, without success, to improve on it." He indicated that it would be "too much trouble all over the world" to change the keyboard now. By 1909, Post said, there were 87 typewriter companies manufacturing machines, many of them invented by printers, editors and publishers. He added that Samuel Clemens was the first to use a typewriter, although he hired someone else to do the actual typing.

Post also noted that more women work at typing than at any other skill.

He summed up his story of "the author's best friend" by repeating a remark by Joseph Wambaugh, author and former member of the Los Angeles Police Department. "The only course from my high school days that is of any value to me now is touch typing."

The author of "The Flicks, or Whatever Became of Andy Hardy," Charles Champlin is also columnist and Arts editor for the Los Angeles Times. And he seconded Wambaugh's remark about typing courses.

"If there was ever a major power failure, I'd be lost," he said. "I can't function without my electric typewriter." The idea of trying to write original copy on a news computer filled him with dread, he remarked.

A firm believer that "Gone With The Wind" is still the best movie of all time, Champlin is certain current movies aren't up to that standard of quality. He spoke of the "shake and bake" series of motion pictures, "Earthquake" and "Towering Inferno" and the present sex-oriented type of film he described as "Flaming Thighs."

"It is a marvelous irony, in that the movies have lost so much of their audience since WW II," he said. "They have lost 40 per cent of their audience to television." Champlin believes there is a "loss of innocence, as portrayed in the Andy Hardy type of movie, where everything ended happily and characters were good or bad."

"Now, TV inundates us with reality," he said, "and children spend 11,000 hours in the classroom as opposed to 60,000 hours watching TV."

In his familiar wry style, columnist-author Jack Smith opened his talk by saying that there is a sort of scum which appears on old typewriters. "My own had been fed crackers, beer and wine and tears, and in return it gave me arthritis." He doesn't like the idea of writing on "terminals," he said, as he doesn't like the feeling of someone looking over his shoulder while he's writing.

In describing his latest book, "Spend All Your Kisses, Mr. Smith", the author and columnist told how he had suddenly realized he was approaching middle-age.

As he writes in the book, the realization came to him when his son, then a student at UCLA, arrived home with a girl on the back of his motorcycle, instead of the usual load of books. The girl, Smith said, was young, pretty, and above all, French, and possessed of a devastating wit. His son had met her in a chemistry class, and Smith averred "there was some sort of chemistry going on between them."

Mlle. Jacqueline Joyeux later became Smith's daughter-in-law, but not before she had earnestly asked him if his son would be just like him — "bourgeois." That was the moment middle age set in, he concluded.

Mae Brown was chairwoman of the event and Lucette Fogwell, program chairwoman.

GREETINGS! — Mary Kay Waite, president of the Arcadia Woman's Club, greets Charles Champlin, columnist and author, at the club's annual authors luncheon, which drew an overflow crowd.

Four Authors Featured At Woman's Club Annual Lunch

ARCADIA -- "Meet the Authors" annual noon luncheon on Wednesday, Feb. 14 at the Woman's club of Arcadia will feature four authors who write in highly diversified fields. Jack Smith, a columnist for a major metropolitan newspaper, has far ranging interests; Ed Gregory is an author deeply involved with outer space; Charles Champlin, arts editor of a major metropolitan newspaper is an expert in the entertainment field; and local Arcadia book publisher, Dan Post, has two interests old cars and old writing machines.

Smith began newspaper work as a sports editor for the Bakersfield California. In subsequent years he worked for the Honolulu Advertiser, United Press in Sacramento, the Sacramento Union, San Diego Journal and two Los Angeles daily papers.

The columnist-author is an alumnus of Belmont High School in Los Angeles where he reached what he considers to be "the highest position" he has held - that of editor of the Belmont High Sentinel.

Books by Smith are "There Coins in a Bird-bath" (1965); "Smith on Wry" (1970); "God and Mr. Gomez" (1974) and "Spend all Your Kisses Mr. Smith" (1978).

Much has been written and said about the author. One comment by Richard Armour is that "Smith is very funny, but he also arouses our sympathy. When we sympathize with him, we sympathize with ourselves.... His frustrations, his little joys, his big dreams are also ours."

Gregory was born in Camden, New Jersey where his father was a wood-carver.

During WWII he served as a navigator and bombardier with the Air Corps in North Africa and Italy. He was graduated from La Salle College, Philadelphia as a physics/electronics major. Gregory worked at David Sarnoff Research Laboratory in Princeton, then went to RCA aerospace division when the United States entered the space effort. Since 1964 he has been with Jet Propulsion Laboratory, Pasadena where he is supervisor JPL's materials analysis laboratory.

The author says, "All of my writing is fiction, but based upon factual possibilities. I do not specialize in subject matter because I write for the fun of putting stories on paper."

Gregory has six novels and one screen play to his credit. He will speak on his latest book, a space mystery "Strange Signature From Space."

Champlin has been the LA Times entertainment editor and principal film critic since 1965. Prior to that, he was with Time Inc. as its London bureau arts correspondent. During the late 50's he was Life magazine's assistant editor in New York. In 1948-1949, he was a reporter for Life based in New York.

Champlin cohosted "Citywatchers" a weekly TV program and was the host of "Film Odyssey" during the early '70's; is the author of "How to Swim Well" (1960) and "The Flicks, or Whatever Became of Andy Hardy" (1977). Champlin has filed stories introducing then-new celebrities such as Julie Christie, Peter O'Toole, Sean Connery and the Beatles.

Post an Arcadia book publisher, says he was bitten by the car bug at age four - in time to distinguish a "star" from a "Packard." Since then he has pursued the course of automobiling as a hobbyist, writer and collector. His expertise is shown in an original motor history, "Volkswagen, Nine Lives Later" (1966).

Of equal interest to Post is being a pioneer collector in the field of early writing machines. He began his collection 40 years ago and maintains "that the development of the typewriter has remained largely an unknown, uncredited invention among the public at large." He will speak on behalf of "Every Author's Best Friend."

Mrs. James Brown, chairwoman of the literature division of the Woman's Club who are sponsors of the luncheon suggests "that with such a group of famous authors, reservations be made as early as possible as space is limited at the clubhouse." (324 S. First Ave.) Reservations may be made with Mrs. Carlton Eckermann, 355-0240; Mrs. William Milner, 358-7657, or with Brown, 447-1710. Tickets are priced at $5 per person with reservations closing the evening of Friday, Feb. 9.

Hostesses for the authors will be Floretta Lauber, past president of the group and former major of Arcadia; Mrs. Chris Reynolds, Brown and Mrs. Harold Shepherd, past president, who also will be mistress of ceremonies.

Mrs. William Milner, immediate past president, in addition to chairing the luncheon, assisted by Mrs. George Johnson, selected the four authors for the annual event.

"Meet the Authors" was begun many years ago by Mrs. Bruce McAbery and has been an uninterrupted tradition since.

Members of the literature division assisting are Mmes. Robert Lane, James Goodwin, door tickets and Louis Taylor, George Nicholson, William Fogwill, table decorations.

Others are Mmes. Carlton Eckermann, seating arrangements; Mrs. LeRoy Blodgett, guest book and Frank Regan, citizenship.

In charge of table setting and waitresses are Mmes. Ted Becker, Harry Hufford and Jay Rhine. They will be assisted by Mmes. Robert Gray, William Johnson, John Fearing, Austin Hansen, Thomas Lura, Gene Lovegreen and Clifford Spoon.

Mrs. Dale Patterson will be dining room hostess with the sale of the authors' books handled by Mrs. John Milam, Mrs. Charles Ganther, Gray and Mrs. Helen Kuhn.

Coffee Set By Arcadia Jrs. Club

ARCADIA -- The Arcadia Junior Woman's Club will honor members of the Woman's Club of Arcadia at a coffee to be held on Thursday, Feb. 8, at 10 a.m., at the home of Jill Beley.

The Arcadia Junior Woman's Club evolved from the Woman's Club of Arcadia in 1937 and in 1938 they became a member of the California Federation of Women's Clubs, Junior Membership. The Woman's Club of Arcadia have continued to sponsor the Juniors since that time.

Juniors were honored by the Woman's Club at a luncheon in January and through these joint gatherings, federation and stronger ties between the two clubs continue to grow.

Sue Newton and Jill Beley are chairmen for this event and Junior members will furnish the refreshments.

Seniors' dance scheduled May 11

"Spring Fling" is the theme for the senior citizens' dance on Friday, May 11, from 7:30 to 10:30 p.m. at the Arcadia Woman's Clubhouse, 324 S. First Ave., Arcadia.

An admission price of 50 cents will enable seniors to dance to live music by Ben Course's Arcadia Ramblers and includes refreshments. There also will be a drawing for prizes.

Co-sponsored by the Arcadia Woman's Club and the Arcadia Junior Woman's Club, the dance is open to all senior citizens in the area. Co-chairwomen for the event are Floretta Lauber and Sue Newton.

Reservations are due by May 9 and may be made by calling Betty Harris, senior citizen coordinator, at Arcadia City Hall, 446-4471, Ext. 74, or by calling Sue Newton of the Arcadia Juniors, 446-5666.

SPRING FLING -- Floretta Lauber, program chairwoman for Arcadia Woman's Club, and John Joseph, president of Arcadia Senior Citizens group, practice a few steps for the "Spring Fling" May 11 at the Arcadia Woman's Clubhouse, while Sue Newton of the Arcadia Junior Woman's Club, cosponsor of the dance, looks on. Live music will be provided by Ben Course's band.

Arcadia Junior Club installs new officers

The Arcadia Junior Woman's Club's annual installation ceremony took place recently at Luminaria's Restaurant. "A Helping Hand Shows a Loving Heart" was the theme chosen by Peggy Sisson for her year as president of the Junior Club.

Marilyn Daleo, past president, was installing officer for Mrs. Sisson and the new executive board including: Denise Hall, dean of chairwomen; Pat Huffman and Barbara Springer, ways and means; Wende Minadeo, membership; Monika Giles, corresponding-recording secretary; Mrs. Daleo, parliamentarian, and Caren Laing, press.

Committee heads included: Karin Crawford, health; Kathi Shaffer, safety; Laurie Waggoner, education; Mrs. Banks, citizen concerns; Mrs. Giles and Joan Patterson, family living; Mrs.

Daleo, build a better community; Lynn Read, bulletin; Melanie Topalian, secret sister; Patti Smith, amenities; Mrs. Springer, bowling; Mrs. Minadeo, historian; Linda Peterson, inspiration and hospitality; Mrs. Larsen, telephone tree, and Helen Nicholson, coordinator.

Mrs. Sisson, a five-year member of Arcadia Juniors, had served previously as treasurer and chairwoman of the ways and means, health, federation and Verdugo-Metropolitan health committees.

She and her husband, Steve, live in Pasadena with their two sons, Scott and Stephen. She is also involved with the Guild for Infant Survival, and was a founding member and president of the group.

Following dinner, new members Monika Giles, Joan Patterson and Lynn Read were initiated by Mrs. Hall. Mrs.

Beley read the historian's report and Mrs. Daleo read the inspiration for the evening.

Mrs. Hall was honored as Junior of the year with a silver engraved bowl for her dedication and service. Board member of the year was Mrs. Laing and chairwoman of the year was Mrs. Shaffer. A special surprise award was given Mrs. Beley, an honorary membership in the Club.

Guests attending the event included Mary Kay Waite, president of Arcadia Woman's Club, and her husband, Bill, and Carolyn Mears, a past president and honorary member of the Juniors.

Juniors set member drive

"A Penny for Your Thoughts... Think About Joining the Juniors!" is the theme of the Arcadia Junior Woman's Club's membership drive on Friday, April 27, from 10 a.m. until noon at the west section of Eisenhower Park.

A display of information, scrapbooks and awards will be presented at the park and members will be available to answer any questions about the club. Coffee, punch and doughnuts will be served and children are welcome.

The Junior Membership of the California Federation of Woman's Clubs (CFWC) is a nationwide organization open to women from 18 to 35 years of age. The motto, "Strength United is Stronger," serves to remind juniors that by working together it is possible to accomplish many things for the benefit of the people within the community, the state and the nation.

The Arcadia Juniors currently consists of young mothers and working women who are willing to volunteer a few hours a week to better the community and make new friends.

Clubwomen plan fashion luncheon

"Sun-Fun Fashions" is the theme of the Wednesday, May 16, fashion show at the Woman's Club of Arcadia, 324 S. First Ave., Arcadia.

Christine Mallon, chairwoman of the event, has announced a social hour at 11:30 a.m. with luncheon to follow at noon. Entertainment and door prizes are scheduled from 1 to 2 p.m. with cards afterwards.

Victor's of Sierra Madre (Dresses and Tresses) will show the latest in fashions for all occasions. Jimmy Reed, co-owner of the boutique at Victor's, will be soloist, accompanied by Rose Lee, pianist-arranger.

Henrietta Loeffler will be commentator and clubmembers will serve as models. Among senior members will be Floretta Lauber, former mayor of Arcadia, Mildred Erickson, incoming president, LaVerne Milan, co-chairwoman of the show, and Harriet Patterson. Models from the Junior Woman's Club will be Peggy Sisson, president, and Monika Giles.

Rose Lee, a nurse at Santa Teresita Hospital, taught herself to play piano by listening at the door of the Oak Theatre when she was a five-year-old. Her current interest is writing spiritual songs and donating her services to various San Gabriel Valley philanthropic groups.

Jimmy Reed started singing on the Gannon Rhythm show when he was a teenager. He has sung in supper clubs, was a dance director for Arthur Murray's studios, and has sung and danced in productions of "Only an Orphan Girl," "Potpourri and Promises" and "The Boyfriend." He has done choreography for theatre and television, and now enjoys choosing wardrobes for "truly elegant women."

Door hostesses for the day will be Shirley Lind, Helen Kuhn, Irene Badger, Caroline Ganther and Mary K. Waite, club president. Rose Lane and Okle Goodwin will handle tickets. Helen Nicholson and Wilma Johnson will be card hostesses.

Prizes for the drawing are being handled by Jane Shepherd, Lela Nestler, Ruth Glidden and Mrs. Nicholson and were donated by Victor's and club members. Stevens Nursery of Arcadia are donating flowers for the stage, with table decorations by Bernice Lovegreen and other florals by Ming Shen. Annette Becker, Willo Shepas and Mae Brown will serve as dining room hostesses.

Victor's of Sierra Madre offers personal shopping, designer dresses, planning cruises and trips through L&M Travel, San Marino, and does shows for local organizations to assist them in achieving their philanthropic goals.

Reservations may be made with Mrs. Mallon, 446-1096 or Mrs. Waite, 442-0719. They will close Saturday, May 12.

Seeing Eye celebrates 50th year

The Seeing Eye, America's pioneer dog guide organization, is currently celebrating its 50th anniversary year.

The Seeing Eye was incorporated in Nashville, Tenn., on Jan. 29, 1929. By coincidence, on Jan. 29, 1979, The Seeing Eye placed its 7500th dog with a blind person at its current school in Morristown, N.J.

The first graduating class, in Nashville, was in Feb. 1929. Before that, however, a young Tennessean, Morris Frank, and his dog, Buddy, had been taught in Vevy, Switzerland, and had carried the message to blind people in the United States that properly trained dog guides could enable them to lead normal, productive lives.

Frank, a former vice president of the school, is now active in the insurance business in Morristown, where The Seeing Eye was moved shortly after its founding. He has had six Seeing Eye dogs, all named Buddy.

But the founder of The Seeing Eye was a remarkable woman named Dorothy Harrison Eustis of Philadelphia. Mrs. Eustis owned and operated in Switzerland a scientific breeding station where German shepherds were being developed for intelligence and stamina. She had been highly impressed by the results of a German government school in Potsdam, where shepherds were trained to guide veterans blinded in World War I.

Mrs. Eustis recounted the performance of the dogs in an article for The Saturday Evening Post, the title of which she had selected from The Book of Proverbs in the Bible: The Seeing Eye.

Frank, then 19 years old, read the article and in a state of excitement and hope, wrote Mrs.

Eustis exclaiming that "I want one of those dogs!" In return, Frank pledged himself to demonstrate to people in the United States — both sighted and blind — the value of a dog guide.

Mrs. Eustis, in a bold and daring move, brought Frank to her kennels in Switzerland and committed herself to providing him with a dog guide. Later, giving up her work abroad, she closed her kennels and moved back to the United States to devote her life and much of her personal wealth to The Seeing Eye. Since then more than 4,300 blind persons have obtained Seeing Eye dogs.

The school now places more than 200 dogs with blind people each year. It takes three months to train a Seeing Eye dog, and another month to teach its master or mistress to work with it. Today, golden and Labrador retrievers, in addition to the traditional shepherds, are used as Seeing Eye dogs. Most are whelped at The Seeing Eys's scientific breeding station near Morristown and then placed as puppies with families of 4-H Club members in New Jersey and Eastern Pennsylvania until they are a year old.

A trained Seeing Eye dog costs a blind person $150, a cost that includes round-trip transportation to Morristown from anywhere in the United States or Canada, plus a month's room and board at The Seeing Eye. Replacement dogs cost $50 each. No qualified blind person has ever been denied a dog because of lack of funds, a Seeing Eye policy.

On June 15, the U.S. Postal Service will issue a commemorative stamp honoring Seeing Eye dogs.

Arcadia High senior wins Verdugo District award ^{FIRST PLACE}

Margaret Weiss, an Arcadia High School senior, took a first place award in the recent Verdugo District Fine Arts Festival at the South Pasadena Woman's Club.

Miss Weiss, one of the Arcadia Woman's Club entries, spoke on "Five Stepping Stones to My Tomorrow". She will receive a money award when she is a guest at the District's Spring Conference to take place at the Huntington Sheraton Hotel in April.

Participating in the festival were Nancy Ann Norcross, painter, an Arcadia High Senior; Karen Sampson, a junior student, who was competing in a two-year award plan on citizenship topics; and Brenda Burns, vocalist, also a senior at AHS. Violinist Vera Dragicevich was to have played a violin solo, but was unable to attend.

Club members attending the Arts Festival were president Mary K. Waite, Caroline Ganther, dean of chairwomen; Helen Nicholson, recording secretary and junior coordinator for the club; Helen Taylor, membership chairwoman, and Lenelle Frye, first vice-president.

Mae Brown, head of the literature division and member of the club's crafts division, displayed a hand-crocheted shawl made with silk and wool yarn imported from Paris and valued at $75.

District awards presented to local Junior Woman's Club

Members of the Arcadia Junior Woman's Club have returned with several awards from the recent Verdugo Metropolitan District convention at the Miramar Hotel in Santa Barbara. At the convention, various district awards were given to Junior clubs, district officers were installed and annual reports were read.

At the district banquet, Arcadia Juniors received a first place award for the club bulletin, sweepstakes award for federation, first place for ways and means, first place for public relations and second place for Build a Better Community.

The awards luncheon was equally exciting for the Arcadia members, as they received honors in five of seven categories in which they competed. They were given second place awards in areas of developmentally disabled, health and safety, and third place awards in environmental protection and family living.

Thirteen members attended the convention, and it had special significance, as it honored Jill Beley, outgoing district president and member of the Arcadia Juniors.

Arcadia Juniors To Attend District May Convention

ARCADIA -- The Miramar Hotel in Santa Barbara will be the May 4 and 5 convention site for the Verdugo Metropolitan District, Junior Membership, California Federation of Women's Clubs, which members of the Arcadia Junior Woman's Club will attend.

Jill Beley of Arcadia, president of the district, will preside over the 23rd annual convention. The convention will begin with a brunch on Friday where outgoing club presidents from Altadena, Arcadia, Eagle Rock, La Canada, La Crescenta, L.A. Chinese, L.A. Philippines, Monrovia, South Pasadena and Sunland, which comprise the District, will be honored. Bruce Sievers, poet, will be the guest speaker.

This opening session will also include reports by the district officers, which include Arcadia Junior members Romilda Lovrensky, district ways and means chairwoman, and Denise Hall, convention chairwoman; and each club president. Sue Newton, President of Arcadia Juniors will report on her club's activities and introduce the incoming president, Peggy Sisson.

The Friday evening banquet will honor district officers. Peggy Allin of Altadena will conduct the installation of district officers for 1979-80, which include: Judy Bolenbaugh of Altadena, district president; Marion Sherman of Monrovia, dean of chairwomen; Sue Newton of Arcadia, federation chairwoman; Yolanda Dennis of Eagle Rock, ways and means; Sami Rawcliffe of Monrovia, recording secretary; Dixie Howarter of Altadena, corresponding secretary; Romilda Lovrensky of Arcadia, treasurer; Carlotta Lang of South Pasadena, parliamentarian; and Beley, public relations.

Various awards will be presented. Under the direction of the Eagle Rock Juniors, representatives from Altadena, Arcadia, Monrovia and South Pasadena will present a musical review saluting the '30s through the '70s.

The Saturday awards luncheon will honor district chairwomen. Awards will be presented for outstanding achievement by clubs in a number of areas.

The presidents of Verdugo District and Metropolitan District, who sponsor the Juniors, will give their annual reports.

Attending the two-day convention from Arcadia will be: Jill Beley, Sue Camphouse, Monika Giles, Hall, Pat Huffman, Caren Laing, Carolee Larsen, Lovrensky, Wende Minadeo, Sue Newton, Kathi Shaffer, Peggy Sisson, Barbara Springer and Linda Dick.
